1964 Proof Sets Tumble in Market Selloff Prices Depressed by Deliveries and Profit Taking

In a market fluctuation reminiscent of the 1960 small date proof set, the prices on the Kennedy proof sets dropped over ten per cent during the course of the past week in extremely active teletype trading. Throughout the decline small groups of dealers and buyers appeared to be making an effort to shore up the price but their efforts went for naught.

Large shipments of the sets are now reaching those who ordered late in 1963 and, faced with the opportunity to make eight hundred per cent on their investment, few are passing up the opportunity. With this large supply hitting the market coupled with a reduction of desire for the sets as the price spirals upward, a correction in the market can only be considered as a natural occurrence.

A price history of the 1964 sets is an extremely interesting study in investment psychology and numismatics combined. The sets were made available in normal fashion late in 1963 and many who had watched the 1963 sets climb in value to three dollars, a forty three per cent increase in value, decided that such an investment had to be a good thing from just about any standpoint.

Late in 1963, after the death of the President, the rumors began to circulate that Kennedy would appear on one of the 1964 issue coins. This caused a quiet increase in orders which grew to a storm in early January and led to the now famous early cutoff of order acceptance. Several weeks later, an important step was taken by the government when they cut back hundred set orders to seventy five sets and thereby freed some 400,000 sets for delivery to the "little people" in two set lots.

When orders were reopened, the mint was hit with a veritable firestorm of orders and were forced to cutoff acceptance almost immediately. In truth, it was not the collector who participated in this second run but once again, the investor who tried to regain his lost twenty five sets by sending in orders by the dozens for the two set lots.

Kennedy Visage Booms Valve

By the spring of 1964 it became obvious that with the visage of the President on the obverse of the new half dollar that the set would be very valuable not only to the people of this country but also overseas. Faced with a locked supply which is now estimated at some three million nine hundred thousand, and the knowledge that while the complete supply would saturate the numismatic community, the initial deliveries would be worth their weight in gold, many of the investment and dealer fraternity began to participate in futures on the sets. Several large dealers sold contracts at a then unheard of price of four dollars per set for fall delivery and planned to stock up on the sets in the fall after the price had risen and then dropped with the appearance of the gigantic supply.

However, feelings of uneasiness began to be felt by these same dealers when the prices opened on first deliveries at eight dollars and, after dropping to the seven dollar level in May, proceeded to take off in June, crossing the nine dollar mark. The sensational popularity of the Kennedy half dollar in plain uncirculated pointed the way to the tremendous value of the proof version and few in the coin investment game were blind enough to miss the signs.

The dealers, after holding off as long as possible, began to cover their shorts and coupled with foreign demand which had been severely underestimated, the prices took off. The first week of July saw the set close at $14.25 and the next week rise to seventeen dollars bid. After a quiet week in which the price sagged to sixteen, the market once again swung upward on the heels of a gigantic proof set run which pushed all sets up at least twenty per cent and the 1964 set, no exception, to twenty dollars.

This run started out with a coalition by a small group of dealers which was formed merely to move out some heavy stocks of personally held sets. But on the second day of the small scale run came the news that the government would date all coins of 1965 with the 1964 date and would cease to manufacture proof sets, using the equipment for regular coinage instead. Once again, the handwriting was on the wall, so to speak, that there would only be one Kennedy half dollar available in proof, that of the 1964 set. Dealers who had held out on covering their shorts came into the market and bought all sets offered fully expecting the price to reach the thirty dollar level before the interest in the set subsided.

Ominous Rumors Are Heard

About this time (the last week in July) a few disquieting rumors began to float around among the well informed portions of the numismatic clan. They were to the effect that there would be a continued production of the 1964 sets into 1965 and an increase of the projected mintage from 3,900,000 to some 5,000,000. Several of the biggest dealers began quietly to unload and, what was more important, ceased to buy. Summer deliveries of the sets from the mint continued in an overwhelming flood and fully ninety per cent of the recipients headed for their friendly coin dealer to demand their share of the gigantic profit.

And so the price began to edge downward. Last week the market closed with the set quoted at 17.50 bid and this week, a further drop of 2.75 to 14.75 bid. Many investors who had passed up the opportunity to sell their sets at the 19-20 level began to dump their sets on the market in increasing numbers. Several of the dealers were able to effect drop ship arrangements whereby they never handled the sets but merely lined up the supply and the demand and took a small margin off the top.

On the tape this week, while the bid as shown in our market quotes is 14.75 it must be remembered that this was for a very small number of the sets. No more do we see offers to buy in thousand set lots. Several of the more important coin dealers when contacted told us without exception that they were steering completely clear of the 1964 market until it settles to a price level with some apparent stability. But when asked just what they guessed this level might be, most abstained from a guess. For it would certainly be a guess with an unknown supply still to be delivered from the mint and many of the sets already delivered in weak hands which might well release them on the market at any further signs of decline. The reader would be well advised to examine seriously his projected market activity in the 1964 sets and use extreme caution in any large purchases or sales at this time.

Overpriced? We Think So!

The 1964 Proof Set is now commanding a price roughly equal to the 1956, yet it has a proposed mintage of 7 times that of the 1956 set. It is commanding three times the price of the 1961 and 1962 Proof Sets which have 60% the mintage. This is a direct contradiction to all basic laws of economics. May we suggest that you buy Proof Sets in proportion to actual market values.

Saint-Gaudens Memorial to Be Historic Site

Amended Securities Act Passes Congress

Christian F. Verbeke

NUMISMATISTS here and abroad will welcome the news of another official homage paid to Augustus Saint-Gaudens.

The numismatic community is indebted to Augustus Saint-Gaudens for perhaps the most beautiful specimen of U.S. coinage: the 1907 Gold Eagle ($10) and Double Eagle ($20). The design was to remain in usage for the ten and twenty dollar gold denominations till 1933 when the issuance of gold coins was discontinued.

A bill (H.R. 4018) to authorize establishment of the Saint-Gaudens National Historic Site at Cornish, New Hampshire passed the House of Representatives on August 3 by a two-third in favor vote. Strong dissent with the measure was voiced by Representative Gross of Iowa.

The bill urging establishment of the Cornish, New Hampshire Saint-Gaudens historic site was eloquently defended by Representative Wayne N. Aspinall of Colorado who stated: "A bill to authorize establishment of the Saint-Gaudens National Historic Site, by the gentlemen from New Hampshire (Mr. Cleveland) has been introduced. The primary purpose of this bill is to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to accept a donation of about 86 acres of land and the buildings and other facilities thereon and to administer this site as a unit of the national park system.

In the national park system we have a number of areas associated with great names in our history—Washington, Lincoln, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, Andrew Johnson, and the two Roosevelts, among our Presidents, and Booker T. Washington, George Washington Carver, Thomas A. Edison, Marcus Whitman, Commodore Vanderbilt, the Wright Brothers, and General Grant among those outstanding in other respects. Thus far, however, we have neglected those who have contributed to the development of the arts in America. Enactment of H.R. 4018 will help to overcome this imbalance.

Augustus Saint-Gaudens is one of the great names in this field. He was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1848, migrated to the United States, studied at Cooper Union and the National Academy of Design in New York, established his home in New Hampshire in 1885, and lived and worked there most of the time until his death in 1907.

We can see examples of his work as a sculptor here in Washington as well as in New York and Chicago. His Adams Memorial and his statues of Lincoln, Sherman, and Farragut are, of course, constant reminders of his greatness, but the preservation of his home and studio as a national historic site will bring all who visit it into much more intimate contact with him and his ways of working than would otherwise be the case.

Although the property and an endowment fund of about $100,-

... "I suppose my education has been neglected, but I never heard of Saint-Gaudens, or whatever his name, until this bill came along. Perhaps he is a hero to the people of New Hampshire; ... Representative H. R. Gross of Iowa.

... "The Saint-Gaudens National Historic site is going to pay national tribute to a great sculptor, one of the most important figures in American cultural history and the greatest sculptor of his day." ... Representative James C. Cleveland—New Hampshire.

000 will come to the Government as a gift, there will necessarily be certain costs associated with the administration of this site. The bill that has been reported by the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs limits the amount that may be appropriated for development of the site to $210,000. Annual administrative expenses are estimated to be about $40,000."

With a typical flair for "save-the-tax-payers-money" pathos, Representative Gross of Iowa voiced strong dissent with the bill when he stated: "I can see no reason why the State of New Hampshire should not take this over as a historic site, if that is what the people of that State want." and added referring to the Saint-Gaudens Memorial: "tell me about this particular one that you are proposing to wrap around the necks of all the taxpayers."

To the explanatory statement by Mr. Cleveland—of New Hampshire: "one of Saint-Gaudens' sent, and future; is that what you are talking about?" and then came the following: "As a cold matter of fact, I suppose my education has been neglected, but I never heard of Saint-Gaudens, or whatever his name, until this bill came along. Perhaps he is a hero to the people of New Hampshire; I do not know;" only to conclude: "I cannot support the sort of business that is about to be perpetrated here today. However, I labor under no illusions. Too many people around here are too free with the taxpayers' money to put a stop to much of this legislation."

The impassioned pleas by the gentleman from Iowa, vaguely reminiscent of an antiquated, turn-of-the-century intra-state isolationism, met with little enthusiasm in the House and the measure promptly passed by a 55 to 6 vote in favor, thus making the Saint-Gaudens National Historic Site at Cornish, New Hampshire a potential reality.

great works was that of a Puritan. Out of respect to the Puritan ethic to which we still pay homage on this side of the aisle at least, I would hope you would not object to this tribute we are paying to a sculptor whose classic works are noted for their integrity, sincerity, and great beauty." Mr. Gross replied: "Do you mean that the gentleman from Iowa ought to subsidize all the Puritans—past, pre-

The original text of the bill provides that: "In order to preserve in public ownership historically significant properties associated with the life and cultural achievements of Augustus Saint-Gaudens, the Secretary of the Interior may acquire, by donation from the Saint-Gaudens Memorial, a corporation, the sites and structures comprising the Saint-Gaudens Memorial situated at Cornish, New Hampshire, and by donation or purchase with donated funds not to exceed three acres of adjacent lands which the Secretary of the Interior deems necessary for the purposes of this Act, together with any works of art, furnishings, reproductions, and other properties within the structures and on the memorial grounds." Furthermore that: "In order that the Saint-Gaudens National Historic Site may achieve more effectively its purpose as a living memorial, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to cooperate with the Saint-Gaudens Memorial, the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and other organizations and groups in the presentation of art expositions and festivals and other appropriate events that are traditional to the site.

The Saint-Gaudens Memorial having by its active interest preserved for posterity this important site, its structures, objects, and cultural values, the executive committee thereof shall, upon establishment of the Saint-Gaudens National Historic Site, serve in an advisory capacity to the Secretary of the Interior in matters relating to its preservation, development, and use."

An appropriation of $210,000 for the development accompanies the bill. The Saint-Gaudens historic site is to be a monument of international significance devoid of any partisan or intra-state implications. Its advent will be greeted with great enthusiasm by all numismatists and no doubt will at heart please the people of New Hampshire.

The $10 and $20 gold coins of 1907 referred to as the "Saint-Gaudens type" originated in the midst of controversy. (see illustrations) Traditionally, no new coin issue has ever been greeted with immediate approval by the public. Most articulate critics at the time objected to the absence of the motto "In GOD We Trust" on the new gold coins. In 1908 Congress promptly restored the motto. President Theodore Roosevelt had made the Saint-Gaudens design his personal choice and cause. The Saint-Gaudens commission was the result of a dinner engagement between the sculptor and the President at the White House. The commission was also a radical departure from established U.S. Mint traditions; for indeed never before had an outsider designed coinage for the government. The move caused consternation and resentment amidst mint officials. One should remember those were the days of the Morgan and Barber reign at the U.S. Mint.

Time has done justice to the numismatic work of Augustus Saint-Gaudens. No one questions the absolute beauty of the 1907 eagle and double eagle designs anymore; nor are outside contributions to U.S. coinage dimly viewed. It is regrettable, however, to notice that at no time reference was

Coin Collateral Value Reduce

The Treasury Department this week won another battle in its war with the coin collector.

Currency Comptroller James Saxon in a letter to National Banks under his supervision, curtailed their ability to make loans for which coins are the collateral. It is understood that many banks are making loans of up to 100% of the face value of American coin collections because the banks have had faith up to now that the collateral could always be sold for at least that amount. However, in the future banks will be limited by Treasury Department ruling to loans of no more than 70% of face value of U. S. coins.

Mr. Saxon was quoted as saying "I do not wish to imply that National Banks have been making such loans in any significant number or dollar amount." However, he has heard and the Treasury Department feels that the scarcity of coins "is beginning seriously to affect many banks' ability to serve customers." He stated that it is "the responsibility and in the interest of all banking institutions to discourage the hoarding of coins so far as they can."

The Treasury Department is of the opinion that the loans banks make on coin collections are often used to acquire more coins upon which more money may be loaned to acquire more coins, thus taking them out of circulation.

The Treasury Department, attributing much of the coin pinch to greater activity by collectors, will continue to do whatever is necessary to alleviate the present shortage.

Considerations on the Coin Shortage

Analysis by Treasury Officials & 'Professional' Money Handlers

Christian F. Verbeke

AN interesting thesis on the probable causes of the coin shortage was developed at the U.S. Treasury and presented before the Senate Committee hearings on retention of "1964" on all coins. The study assumes there exists a definite correlation between population and coinage demand as reflected by the per capita coins-in-circulation ratio.

While this relationship is undeniable, it remains a study based on simple correlation, a rather crude statistical tool. More accurate results can be obtained by using the often complex multiple correlation approach. Such a method would take into consideration other factors apt to create or cause a coin shortage.

At any rate, the Treasury study presented by Mr. Robert A. Wallace, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is interesting though empirical. Estimating the Effect of Speculative Activity on the Coin Shortage.

1) If it is assumed that the $100 million increase in coin exchange volume this year, as compared with 1962, is the result of activity in uncirculated coins in rolls and bags, it would mean that $100 million in these coins are being held off the market. At the over-all current ratio of the number of coins per dollar, this extra $100 million would represent about 1½ billion pieces.

2) Another measure of the extent of coin hoarding is the recent large increase in the ratio of coins in circulation to total retail sales of nondurable goods establishments. This ratio has been steadily increasing over the years along with expanding use of vending machines, toll road travel, and the myriad other coin-using activities. As the attached table show, the ratio of circulating coins to this type of retail sales rose from .0188 in 1957 to 0.209 in 1963. The highest previous increase in this ratio in any year since 1958 was a 4-percent increase which occurred in 1963. Yet, based on the first 6 months' activity this year it is estimated that the increase this year will be 7.6 percent. If we assume that the

4-percent increase which occurred in 1963 is normal to handle increases in all coin-using activities—including the increases in coin collecting each year—the excessive increase represents some $125 million. However, these additional coins represented by the higher increase in the ratio of coins to sales, have apparently disappeared from normal trade channels. Again using the current overall ratio of coins to dollar value of coins, this would represent a loss for regular commercial use of about 2 billion coins. (See exhibit 1).

3) A third indicator of the extent of coin hoarding is the large increase in number of coins per capita in recent years. As shown in the attached table, from 1956 to 1961 the increase in the dollar value of circulating coins per capita rose about 3 to 4 percent each year. In 1962 this increase jumped to 6 percent. In 1963 it was 7 percent and in 1964 it is estimated that it will amount to nearly 10 percent. If we assume that perhaps a 6-percent increase in coins per capita is attributable to actual coin usage, then 4 percent of the increase this year has no ready explanation but coin hoarding. Translated into dollar terms this again comes to about $100 million or 1½ billion coins. (See exhibit 2).

4) The three separate statistical measures above all support an estimate that increased speculative activity has resulted in 1½ billion coins being held out of circulation. (See exhibit 3).

5) Since the bulk of speculative activity in coins is in new coins in rolls and bags, it seems reasonable to estimate that continuing the 1964 date on coins would free an extra 1 billion pieces for circulation. (See exhibit 4).

The private view on the coin shortage is best reflected by the Brink's study. Brink's, Inc. are "professional" money handlers and experts on transportation, security, and logistics of money. Brinks operates in 2,500 communities, the firm engages routinely in shipments between financial institutions of all types and sizes as well as in the delivery of coins and currency needed by business houses.

The views of this firm on the Nation's coin shortage were recently presented by its president, Arthur S. Genet, to the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce. With reference to the functions filled by the Federal Reserve he stated: "The coin shortage is not local, nor is it of recent origin. This situation has been evident over a period of at least 4 years, and for the last 2 it has been accelerating at an astounding rate. The Federal Reserve bank has done an excellent job under circumstances with which it has been presented. As it is our privilege to pick up and deliver to the Federal Reserve bank in many of its locations, the point should be stressed that they are making every effort to move coins as quickly as possible. As an illustration, in many cases the banks or branches are receiving requests for coin as late as 3 o'clock in the afternoon and it is made available for delivery early the next day.

The businessman, whether he operates a single shop or multiple places of business, receives his coin requirements from his bank. We in general transport these needs in accordance with his instructions. In Chicago alone we serve approximately 3,000 locations per day. The bank in turn must get its coin from either the Federal Reserve, if it is a member of the Federal Reserve System, or from a correspondent bank, that in all probability is a member of the System. The Federal Reserve Bank, in turn, gets its new coin from the mint, and the mint manufactures coin under the direction of Congress."

Cashdan's Coin Comments

Eliot J. Cashdan

WE do not see how the manufacture of 45 million silver dollars will help ease the coin shortage, but we are all for it anyway. The only trouble is, these coins are being manufactured almost at the whim of a certain western senator who had this legislation pushed through for the interests of certain constituents.

The time and silver necessary to produce these dollars could be used to more advantage in producing other coins that the Treasury Department keeps advising are in short supply.

We doubt seriously if any of these silver dollars will circulate any further than from the banks to individuals who will keep them for souvenirs. The Treasury Department has made every citizen of our country so coin conscious through its periodic releases claiming shortages and hoarding, that it has made collectors and hoarders out of the entire populace.

As a matter of fact, we have made quite a study of the coins held on hand by the various banks throughout the country, and we find that most banks have more coins in their vaults right now than they have ever had before. The reason seems to be that when banks have a surplus of coins, they usually ship them to their Federal Reserve Branch or sell them to other banks that they correspond with. Now that certain officials of the Treasury Department keep on insisting that there is a coin shortage, the various banks are afraid to return their surplus coins to the Federal Reserve or transfer them to other banks because they figure that they would not want to get caught short at some future date. In other words, the banks themselves are helping to create regional shortages of coins because they are hoarding surplus coins.

To help ease the coin shortage on late rolls and bags of coins, we are going to suggest to our readers today to investigate the possibilities of investments in United States commemorative coins. Being that the commemorative gold coins are just a short set and priced pretty high, we will discuss the commemorative silver coins that have been issued by the United States.

The collecting of sets of commemorative half dollars has been very popular through the years, and it has certainly picked up during the past four years. Most people who collect commemorative coins are putting together type sets today rather than trying to put a complete set together.

A type set of commemorative silver coins consists of 48 different commemorative half dollars plus the Isabella quarter and the Lafayette dollar. The first United States commemorative coin was the Columbian half dollar which was first struck in 1892. There were 950,000 struck in 1892 and there were 1,550,405 struck in 1893. The complete mintage of both years was struck at the Philadelphia Mint, and the coins were placed on sale at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893.

The only thing that stopped the coins from being a sellout was the fact that they were being sold for one dollar each at the Exposition, and people on the whole were reluctant to pay one dollar for a half dollar. There were not too many coin collectors at that time, and there was no idea that commemoratives were going to be manufactured in the future and would become good collector's items. There was quite a large quantity which remained unsold, and these were later put into circulation at face value.

That is the reason that you see more circulated Columbian half dollars for sale than any other variety now. The female of the species is responsible for the only commemorative quarter issued by the U. S. and it was also in conjunction with the Columbian Exposition in Chicago.

It seems that the Board of Lady Managers of the Columbian Exposition decided that they should have a coin honoring Queen Isabella because without her help Columbus couldn't have made his trip. Therefore they asked for a souvenir quarter to commemorate Queen Isabella, and of course the gentlemen in Congress could not turn down the ladies, and on March 3, 1893 the authority was granted to mint the quarter with the likeness of Queen Isabella. There were only 24,214 of these quarters struck, and evidently the ladies were good salesladies, too, as they sold the quarters for one dollar each and sold all of them.

The only commemorative dollar is the Lafayette dollar of which there were 36,026 struck in 1900. The obverse of this coin bore bust of both Washington and Lafayette, and was the first U. S. coin to bear the likeness of one of our Presidents. We will not try to describe all of the 48 varieties of half dollars that were struck, but we will mention that they certainly went wild over manufacturing commemorative half dollars during the 30s. Every anniversary of Statehood or most anything else seemed to be an occasion for authorizing a new commemorative half dollar.

Because of more pressing matters during 1940 through 1945, there were no commemorative coins manufactured during those years. In 1946 a Booker T Washington half dollar was authorized, and they were struck at all three mints every year between 1946 and 1951. The same authority also authorized the Washington-Carver half dollar which was struck at all three mints from 1951 through 1954. They made so many of these last two commemorative half dollars that they didn't sell too well, and the Treasury Department has frowned on commemorative coins since that time and there have been none authorized or made since the last Washington-Carvers were struck in 1954.

The three key commemorative half dollars are the Hudson, Hawaiian, and Old Spanish Trail. Each of these three coins only had a total mintage of 10,008 pieces and they naturally are the rarest in the whole series. Being that every type set must have one each of these three coins, they are the highest priced coins in the set.

Here again though is an interesting fact about the relationship between mintage and scarcity and demand and availability. The demand for these three coins is just about the same, because there are very few people who just want to have one expensive or key commemorative half dollar in their possession. The mintage is exactly the same, and we have never heard of any of these three types ever having been put into circulation, although on occasion we have come across one of them in circulated condition. When it comes to availability though, there we have an entirely different matter.

At this moment, the Hawaiian commemorative half dollar sells for about twice as much as the Old Spanish Trail which is retailing for about $275.00 in uncirculated condition. The Hudson sells for about $50.00 more than the Spanish Trail does.

The main reason for this is that the Hawaiian commemorative coins were released in Hawaii, and many individuals who were not collectors at all bought them for souvenirs and a lot of these people have held on to the coins through the years and are still holding on to them. In other words, they are not available and not on the market. Being that the retail price of the Hawaiian half dollar is just about twice that of the Old Spanish Trail half dollar, we must assume that there are approximately twice as many of the Spanish Trail halves available to collectors at this time, and that there are a few less of the Hudsons available than Spanish Trails.

Should you desire to invest in commemorative halves or just to collect them, we would advise you to obtain these three coins first, as they are the nucleus of the set.

made to the numismatic accomplishments of Augustus Saint-Gaudens during the Congressional proceeding on the Saint-Gaudens historic site establishment. Time and widespread national attention to the historic site may well cure this unfortunate oversight.

On Thursday, August 6, the Senate concurred in the House amendments to S. 1642, amending in several regards the Securities Act and the Securities Exchange Act. This action cleared the bill for the President's signature.

The bill places heavy emphasis on self regulation and deals with the listing of new securities, hiring and training practices of brokerage house employees and their registration.

New powers to deny registration to unfit individuals by the S.E.C. are granted in the bill. Also considered are the authority of disciplinary action by the Commission. New rules on proxies, insider transactions, full disclosure policies and the maintenance of "primary markets" are featured in the measure. The Treasury Department and the S.E.C. earlier expressed full approval of the House amendments. The New York Stock Exchange urged prompt adoption of the bill by the Senate in a letter addressed to Senator A. Willis Robertson-D, of Virginia, Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

In an effort to do his share of solving the acute coin shortage in this country, Senator Thomas H. Kuchel of California introduced a bill in the Senate which would revitalize the San Francisco Mint. The coin shortage is a very real problem in this country, and this is especially true in the Far West. Almost since the beginning of our history there has been a mint in San Francisco which by the way was in operation until 1955 the last year that coins were struck. In 1962, legislation was passed through Congress which made the mint facilities in San Francisco simply an assay office. Senator Kuchel suggests that one way to best utilize the available man power and machinery at that assay office would be to pass legislation so that the Director of the Mint may make the necessary preparations to reconvert that office into a mint. And while they now simply engage in the receipt of silver and gold, the facilities there may be expanded and again be used to help overcome the severe shortage of coins.

MacARTHUR PESO

AND HALF PESO

With the recent passing of General MacArthur, already there are plans to strike commemorative medals in his honor. The Philippine government was way ahead of us, in 1947 as a tribute to their liberator, two commemorative coins (peso and half peso) bearing his portrait were struck at the U.S. Mint in San Francisco.

The coins bear the date 1947 with the S-Mint mark below the date. Only 100,000 pieces of the one peso were struck and 200,000 of the half peso pieces were struck. We consider them to be greatly under-priced in relation to the small quantities minted. This coin should definitely be a part of every foreign coin collection, and we expect the day to come when they will be listed in the Guidebook of U.S. Coins along with other Philippine issues. The 1947-S Peso and Half Peso MacArthur coins belong in every U.S. collection as a tribute to a great American General. It is our belief that these coins will not be too plentiful in the very near future.

Current Crises Makes Silver USA'S Most Precious Metal - Sound Monetary Values - National Defense - Numismatics - Depend on the Correct Solution

INTRODUCTION:

We have seen reams written every week for over thirty years concerning GOLD IMBALANCES and their effect upon our economic and national well being. Today's SILVER crisis is far MORE IMPORTANT than GOLD has ever been. Even uranium takes a back seat when we consider the IMPORTANCE OF SILVER as a problem of national, as well as, world concern.

Events of recent years have steadily INCREASED the use of silver not particularly as a monetary base of values, but as a PRECIOUS metal with almost unlimited uses. Where as only a few short years ago there were not too many uses of silver other than coinage and a STABILIZER for monetary systems, we now see a radical change almost overnight that was not PROPERLY anticipated. TODAY, commercial use of silver has passed monetary use (coinage) by a wide margin, and the GAP is continually widening and WILL CONTINUE TO WIDEN directly in proportion to the GROWTH of the economy. TODAY in the U.S.A., we use 44% of our annual silver requirements for coinage, and this is surpassed by NOW 56% use for commercial purposes. This portends ACTION and thinking from those in high sources. No longer can we treat silver as a "rumor" originating from the Western half of the U.S.A. The day has now come when it must be faced there is a SILVER CRISIS, and the solution of this crisis is one of utmost importance.

There is no doubt that DEBASEMENT of our coinage is practically a foregone conclusion. IT HAS TO BE DONE in order to bridge the GAP until such time as prices are RAISED to bring both IDLE facilities and new facilities into being to supply a world economy which is showing a voracious, ever-growing appetite. Silver, the most precious of metals in our economic and monetary system, is at the CROSSROADS. We can no longer stand by in this great country and consider silver a SECONDARY precious metal. It is now the MOST PRECIOUS of all metals, due to its very predominant use in our NATIONAL DEFENSE as well as our monetary system. So important is this CRISIS that there are now almost one dozen bills before Congress, all offering remedial action, or at least that is the HONEST opinion of the various sponsors. While not elaborating on the subject, I noted that Goldwater made passing mention in his acceptance speech. No doubt, it will be mentioned in further detail. So important do we here at The Forecaster consider this subject, that we will endeavor to give it full treatment. To the best of our ability, in this and our next issue. Watch the next week issue for our write up SILVER WEALTH AND WEAPON. Is "hot money" on the move? Where are the silver coins? Not in hands of dealers and collectors in large quantities as many "claim". Will current crisis cause ALL SILVER coins to disappear? Was William Jennings Bryan right and thinking FAR AHEAD of his time? Will the SILVER CRISIS cause an economic shift to the West? While there is much in common with the GOLD CRISIS of the 30's, what is the basic difference in today's silver crisis?

We have had to leave out a great deal of our regular material for this report this week. And, will possibly, have to do so next week, to bring you these reports. They are important. One person who does not have anything to worry about is the person who now OWNS BU silver coins in quantity. They are PRIME, both as investments, and as hedges in our opinion. See my predictions next week.

Mr. L. Predict.

THE COIN FOLLIES OF 1964

No play ever launched on Broadway ever had the attention and attendance that anywhere approaches the over 100 million Americans who weekly watch the current episode unfold in THE COIN FOLLIES OF 1964. Sequels in this amazing "Comedy of Errors" are being run and rerun via radio, television and news media. The principal stage is The Halls of Congress, in which never a week passes without some legislator in deep desperation, offering some type of "panacea" in a futile effort to cover up the bungling mistakes of the past, when the bureaucrats in our government "failed" in their efforts to keep an increasing mintage in direct proportion to our economic and population growth. All of these happenings have a definite effect on every coin INVESTOR and COLLECTOR alike.

Possibly the opening act in this little drama could be traced back to the sudden and dramatic announcement of the new Kennedy half replacing the Franklin half. This was, in our opinion, a most IMPULSIVE act and done during a period of great stress when a bereaved country was in deep mourning for a slain young leader of our democracy. For years, every effort to get a Commemorative Coin issued by our government had been doomed to failure. Even though passing Congress, they have met with continual Presidential Veto. Eisenhower saying, "they serve no useful purpose". No doubt looking back it would have been a much wiser step and, possibly avoided entirely, the CURRENT COIN SHORTAGE, had our legislators, in their wisdom, coined the Kennedy half as a Commemorative coin and continued with the Franklin half as a regular medium of coinage. In the absence of any coin to commemorate President Kennedy, the Kennedy half has been used the WORLD over as the nearest thing and a substitute for the real COMMEMORATIVE.

A POWERFUL BOOK!!

The most REVEALING book written on the current SILVER CRISIS... Learn WHY and WHEN our money will be DEBASED. Why the price of SILVER will RISE to unpredictable heights. How this affects our Monetary SYSTEM, our National Defense, and YOU as a numismatist.

Why our present system has to CHANGE. World requirements of silver is 400 million ounces yearly, with ONLY 215 million ounces produced. Learn why coinage will be DEBASED much quicker than you think. Exposes the "bungling" in our SILVER POLICY and WHY it must change... THIS BOOK TELLS ALL! No person who has any interests whatsoever in the FUTURE of numismatics NEEDS to read this DARING treatment of the IMPENDING SILVER CRISIS—and CRISIS IT IS. Full length 140 pages. Rep. Compton White of Idaho has introduced into the Congress H.R. 10559 and H.R. 10560, these two bills will HALT Treasury sales of silver bullion to buyers over the WORLD. With only 1.4 billion ounces of silver bullion on hand as of Dec. 31, 1963—we are in DIRE STRAITS when silver is considered. Vital to our monetary system as well as National Defense, silver is now the most VITAL metal in our possession. One of the bills will halt the SALE OF SILVER, the other will DEBASE our silver coinage and RAISE the price of Silver. These are IMPORTANT estimates to consider. 1965 use of silver will be 250 million ounces, with a production of 37 million ounces, in other words we in U.S.A. are expected to use 213 million ounces more than our production—World consumption is expected to reach 400 million ounces, a HEFTY IMBALANCE in World Wide usage of silver of 185 million ounces. Even halting the TREASURY sales and the continued climb in consumption demands, we can very well EXHAUST our current SILVER SUPPLY before 1969, a mere 5 years hence. During this same period there can well be estimated a WORLD IMBALANCE of 1.3 billion ounces. Almost equal to our reserve at end of 1963.

Silver coinage can well DISAPPEAR overnight. These coins will have to be debased to SAVE our silver resources for commercial and defense use... It could well be that we can have coins with NO SILVER CONTENT before five years pass.

Bowers on World Coins

Q. David Bowers

IN recent weeks we have covered in detail proof sets of Canada, Great Britain, South Africa and the Philippine Islands. This week we fill in with a few "odds and ends" . . . sets we have not listed before such as Australian issues, certain British Commonwealth, etc. Australian proof sets are generally collected of the years from 1955 through 1963. In 1964, for the first year in nearly a decade, the Australian Government announced that it was not minting proof sets, thus breaking what promised to be a continuous series. Australian proof coins are issued from both of its mints: Perth and Melbourne. The bronze Perth Mint pieces are identified by a small period after the "Y" in PENNY.

Australian proof coins have not been especially popular with collectors as the proof surfaces are unsatisfactory. The copper is toned dark and often has an oily appearance. The surface of the pieces leaves much to be desired and often more resembles an uncirculated coin than a Brilliant proof coin.

There are 305 1955 complete Australia proof sets minted, containing the coinage from the Perth and the Melbourne Mint. These sets currently sell in the $80.00 range. 1,040 sets without the Perth coins were issued, these sell for approximately $40.00.

414 complete 1956 Australia sets were issued; these have a current value of approximately $60.00. 1500 Melbourne sets (sets without Perth bronze) were issued, these having a value of $35.00 a set. 1,066 1957

Australia proof sets were issued; these sell for approximately $30.00 each. Without the Perth penny, 1,256 other sets were issued, currently selling for approximately $20.00. 1,011 1958 complete Australia proof sets were issued; these now sell for approximately $30.00 each. 1,506 additional partial sets were issued at Melbourne and are now worth $20.00. 1,006 1959 Australia proof sets were coined; these now sell for $30.00.

An additional 1,506 incomplete sets were issued; these now sell for $15.00. 947 1960 Australia complete sets were issued; these now sell for $25.00. An additional 1,509 sets without Perth bronze were issued; these now are worth in the $15.00 range. In 1961 1,040 complete sets were issued; these now sell for about $20.00 each. An additional 1,506 without the Perth pieces were issued; these now sell for about $10.00 less. 1,052 1962 Australia sets were issued; these now sell for $15.00. An additional 2,016 sets were made without the Perth pieces; these now sell for $10.00. The 1963 Australian proof sets, for which we do not have the mintage figures on hand, now sell for about $8.00 each.

The mintage figures for Australian proof sets are low; and the number of surviving pieces is probably lower yet as they were not issued in attractive cases for preservation.

Only 2,000 1955 British Caribbean Territories proof sets were issued. This attractive set comes in a beautiful velvet-lined maroon case. It is interesting as the only modern British proof set from the Western Hemisphere. These sets have always been rare. The current market value is in the $55.00 to $70.00 range; an increase of $25.00 from the price a year ago at this time. 1,800 1957 Ceylon proof sets were issued. These were not particularly well received at the time of issue with the result that large quantities were on hand for several years later. It has only been in the past few years that the Ceylon set has been widely distributed.

This double set of four pieces is found in a velvet-lined blue leatherette case. Ceylon sets currently sell for about $70.00 each. 2,000 1955 Cyprus sets were issued. Despite the small mintage these are still occasionally traded in groups of several dozen or more sets due to poor distribution at the time of issue. This poor distribution probably accounts for the current low valuation of $30.00; a situation which will undoubtedly correct itself soon. 20,431 1958 Ghana sets were issued. These now sell for $17.00 to $20.00 each. These were not particularly popular at the time of issue in 1958; their popularity awaited the great interest in foreign proof sets which has come about only in the past two or three years. 2,100 1956 Guernsey sets were issued.

This set is found as a double set of six pieces in a velvet-lined green leatherette case. The current market value is approximately $35.00. 1,700 1957 Jersey sets were struck. These are found as a double set of four pieces in a maroon leatherette case. Sets sell for $30.00 to $35.00 when you can find them. These sets are quite scarce in this country, and offerings of more than one or two at a time are rare.

The 1960 Jersey set is an entirely different situation. Originally it was announced that only 400 would be struck; later the figure was raised to 2,000. Although we do not have the exact figures on hand we would estimate the number of coins actually struck at closer to 10,000 sets. Most of these were restruck in the years after 1960. The current market value is in the $15.00 to $20.00 range. 7,000 1953 New Zealand sets were issued. These currently sell in the $55.00 to $65.00 range.

This set was issued on the event of Queen Elizabeth II's Coronation. An inordinately popular set, several dealers' holdings have now been widely dispersed. Only 1,031 1959 Nigeria sets were issued. These sets were stored in a damp bank vault in Lagos with the result that cases are invariably spotted with black blotches. The coins are often tarnished. Nonetheless, the set remains desirable and very elusive. Of all modern British Commonwealth proof sets, this must rank as one of the hardest to find. Sets are now worth in the $75.00 to $100.00 range.

An estimated 5,000 Pakistan "type" proof sets were issued. The coins in this set are of different dates from 1948 through 1953 and illustrate the first dates of each separate type. The set is housed in a rather poorly made red and white wood and satin case. The current value is in the $10.00 to $12.00 range.

rent value is in the $10.00 to $12.00 range. 2,000 1955 Rhodesia and Nyasaland proof sets were issued. This set is also known as the "Central African Federation" set.

These coins were oversubscribed at the time of issue, with the result that the sets are very widely dispersed with no large holdings in any one spot, to our knowledge.

600 1962 Surinam sets were issued. These currently sell for $25.00 to $30.00. This set has not been too popular with collectors for several reasons; the manner of distribution and high issue price plus the quality of the coins in the set. For only a few dollars collectors can obtain uncirculated coins with prooflike surfaces, not too dissimilar from the proof coins which are valued at many times more.

Commercial Banking System Sound

"COMMERCIAL banking system sound" says Senator A. Willis Robertson, D. of Virginia. Sen. Robertson elaborated on this by pointing out that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation now carries insurance on approximately $180 billion of bank deposits, and has built up a fund of $2.7 billion with which to meet liabilities. He has carefully watched the rapid expansion of bank credit during a rather inflationary period of some 20 years paying particular attention to the safe operations of our insured banks and whether the premium they pay for the insurance of deposits up to $10,000 is enough to make the insurance fund actuarially sound. The conclusion reached was that insured banks of this Nation are indeed well managed and in sound condition. Bank failures are an exception rather than the rule.

The closing of the Frontier Bank in Covelo, Calif., on July 31 marks the fifth bank failure this year, and the third in the past 30 days. Careful examination of all these bank failures has revealed that in every instance the failure has involved a relatively small bank that has experienced a recent shift of either control or management, and sometimes both. Whether these banks failed because of inexperienced management or whether they were "raided" is not yet clear. That is a matter for the courts to decide. "What I do want to make clear today is that, in my opinion, these failures do not reflect in the slightest on the basic strength and vitality of the commercial banking system of the United States." Mr. Robertson continued by stating: "Perhaps there is a problem connected with the sudden changes of control; and the House Banking and Currency Committee is preparing to consider proposed legislation giving the regulatory agencies information in this particular area. I have stated publicly that I will support this proposed legislation if the House passes it. There always will be stress and strain in any system as diverse and competitive as the commercial banking system in the United States today. But I want to make it clear that a few isolated failures in no way reflect on the integrity and stability of the system of commercial banks in this country.

Silver Policy Joint Resolution Introduced. Representative Compton White, Idaho, who represents the congressional district which is the Nation's leader in silver production, has introduced a joint resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to make a special study of the silver policy of the United States. In support of Rep. White's timely effort to persuade the Treasury to come to grips with this problem, Senator Frank Church of Idaho introduced a companion joint resolution to the one now pending in the House. The joint resolution (S.J. Res. 190) provides for a study and report to Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury concerning the silver policy of the United States; it was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

The dates of August 13 and 14 will bear watching when the Committee on Banking and Currency will meet to discuss the following important bills: H.R. 10534, and related bills, to redefine the silver content in silver coins; H.R. 10561, and related bills, to prohibit the sale of silver bullion by the Secretary of the Treasury; H.R. 10560 and related bills, to increase the monetary value of silver to $2.5858 per ounce; and H.J. Res. 1140, to provide for a study and report to Congress by Secretary of Treasury concerning the silver policy of the United States.

TREASURY SEALED MINT SETS

These are treasury sealed mint sets (with low mintage listed below). These are not home made sets. Look what happened to proof set prices when on Jan. 11th the mint cut off orders after only 2½ months. Mint set orders were cut off only 5 days after acceptance. Many collectors will turn to mint sets for 1965 (if they make them)—because of the fact that no more proof sets will be made.

1960/60 NICKELS...

This is our most popular item. 1960/60 nickels with nicely doubled lettering, profile, dome, "monticello, etc., etc. Also, many of these coins have really nice doubled dates. We have sold thousands of these coins with constant re-orders, as these are good for investors, dealers, collectors, and traders, and remember the 1955/55 cent was "just another oddity" and sold for 50c several years back. We will also consider trades for BU rolls and mint sets. If trading for above mint sets we will allow an extra 15% discount.

BU - $2.95 each - $47.50 per roll

Shortage

Mr. Genet then elaborated on the mechanics of coin flow: "Normally, the Federal Reserve System will obtain from the mints approximately 20 per cent of its requirements of coin for its member banks. Historically, the balance has come from coin that would be re-deposited with the Federal Reserve, which then cleans, prepares, and reissues this coin to those who have need of it. The problem, as the figures will disclose to you, has not been caused by deceleration of coin coming from the mint itself, since the figures disclose more coin is being made available from that source. Rather, the shortage itself, for a number of reasons, has caused little or no coin to flow back to the Federal Reserve Bank in the form of deposits from member banks," and in doing so stressed the deficit of coin return flow. He cited the specific example of the Chicago area: "Using Chicago as an example, in May 1964 we handled for the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank only 58 percent of the coin that was handled in May of 1963, despite the acknowledged fact that the requests for coin were considerably higher in the current year. In the year 1963, 84 percent of the coin that was shipped out returned in one form or other to this same Federal Reserve bank for reuse. In 1964, only 36 percent of the reduced amount available was returned to the bank for reuse. It can be seen from these figures that, to maintain the normal coin balance this particular Federal Reserve bank would need in order to continue a satisfactory operation, new coinage in the amount of 64 percent would have to be made available to it. Giving the figures in full dollars, in 1963, of $2,267,000 in coin shipped out in the month of May, $370,000 failed to return. This year, with only $1,897,000 shipped, $1,330,000 failed to return."

On the operation of a typical Federal Reserve branch he cited this interesting example: "These figures in themselves would not be complete for any worthwhile study, if we did not examine a typical Federal Reserve branch, which would depict the previous flow of coin to the bank from the mint and from its member banks on a comparative basis between 1963 and 1964, and to show the deficiency as we understand it.

It is important to see that although the amount received from the mint was increased over 1963 by 56.3 percent the increase required to maintain the Fed's coin reserve would have to have been 210 percent. You will note from the foregoing chart that under "Deficiency," despite a surplus of $1,365,000 of additional coin from the mint, this branch of the Federal Reserve was short $6,259,630 in coin on a comparative basis, with no consideration being given to the increased demand for coin and the probability that the bank undoubtedly rationed the coin shipped out. Just how short of coin the bank was in this particular case, we have no means of knowing, but being as familiar with the financial need of the country as a whole as we are, we are safe in saying this deficiency is showing only a small percentage of what could have actually been used.

While we have been talking in the past of dollar figures in the various categories, it may, and should be, of interest to consider the unit figures in the various categories. We list below the units of pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters, and halves received in 1963, received in 1964, and the amount needed (124,532,100 units) by category to maintain their position as of December 31, and again let me stress that they probably were short of coin on December 31." (see exhibit V)

The Nation's coin shortage will remain an important topic in the months to come. Measures recently adopted will no doubt alleviate this shortage, but it is felt that no real solution is in sight till new mint production facilities in Philadelphia are completed.

Were the coin shortage to continue with its present acuteness, then the official view point of coin collector's responsibility for this deficiency would be greatly dispelled. The months ahead should provide the public with the answer to this thorny question.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series.

It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

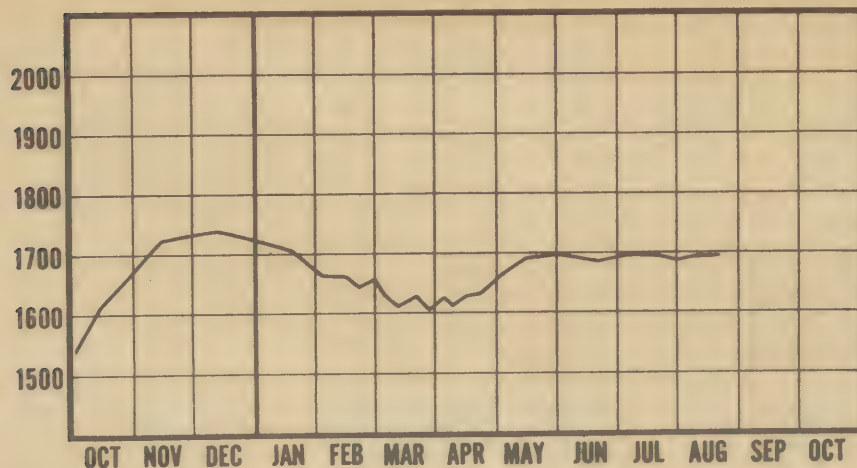

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis.

The high and low for 1964 is also shown.

MARKET SUMMARY

By Russell Brown

August 12, 1964

A week of good advances for nickels, dimes and quarters which saw new highs for the year scored by the Jeffersons and Washingtons brought us out of the summer slump once and for all. Peace dollars were also actively demanded and the short available supply drove prices up sharply.

The Peace series, after five weeks of immobility, advanced sharply with seven issues scoring huge advances. The 1925-P, 1925-S, 1926-D and 1935-S all gained from 15 to 20 per cent in active trading as the full meaning of the government's plan to mint silver dollars in 1965 was grasped by the investment fraternity. For the word from reliable sources is now out that the dollars struck will indeed be of the Peace design and will be dated 1964 (or 1965 as the case may be, for what would be gained by using 1964 in 1965 when there were no 1964's?)

Jefferson nickels continued their now three week old advance with the strongest price movement yet observed in this popular series. Twenty four issues advanced and the gains were not of the one and two dollar variety for the large part but of substantially greater amounts. The 1939-D and S rose $100 and $45. Many other issues rose three dollars per roll or more. However, there were some losses scored, the largest of which was a ten dollar decline by the 1945-P. The 1942-S also dropped eight dollars.

Roosevelt dimes were quietly traded at much higher prices. Twelve issues advanced against only one decline. Leaders of the series were the 1951-S, 1949-P, and the 1947-D with gains of $15, 5 and 4 respectively.

Washington quarters continued their two month uphill climb with advances out-numbering declines by an eight to one margin. The 1950-S and the 1946-D gained twenty dollars and twelve dollars in heavy bidding. Seven dollar gains were also scored by the 1958-P and the 1952-S. The series average advanced 4.6%, a particularly large gain for a denomination which was already at a year's high the preceeding week.

Franklin half dollars advanced slightly in a mixed market that saw more issues losing five dollars or more per roll than gainers. But a number of small advances carried the average up slightly.

Morgan dollars presented an interesting picture of a slow moving series in slight demand this week. After months of activity in which there were price movements in the tens of dollars if not the hundreds, this week only one issue managed an advance of ten dollars, that being the 1890-P. All other issues of the series either advanced several dollars or less (4), declined several dollars (5), or remained unchanged. (87) Also, ten price movements in a series of 97 issues can be considered as quite small. Most interest in the Morgan series for the past several weeks has been collector interest with as many or more requests for hard to obtain single coins as for bags and rolls. What price movements there are can be construed to be series wide, presenting no trend as to most popular or least popular era or mint. Price-wise, it appears that many of the lower priced rolls are going lower as are the highest priced rolls. But those in the middle of the price range are steady or advancing slightly.

Proof sets seemed to reach the saturation point this week with many of the later date sets off their preceding week highs. In fact the entire group from 1957 to date, without exception was either down or unchanged in price. However, at the other end of the scale, several of the elder sets continue to rise as good merchandise usually does. The 1936 set is not available at $1,000 and there is little telling where its price spiral will end.

In the Canadian market place the prices on the late date sets sagged somewhat following in the footsteps of their U.S. bretheren. The 1963 and 1964 sets were hit with selloffs and the proof like dollars of 1964 were offered at prices down 20% from the preceding week. The older sets remained unchanged as the interest in Canadian coinage in general took a back seat to the U.S. market.

Circulated coins did not fare well this week with the dimes hard hit by declines. Four of the Roosevelt circulated keys were dropped by large losses as were several of the Franklins. But the 1953-P and the 1955-P Franklin did manage a gain of two dollars apiece in moderate trading.

The Market Opinion

In a country which has the ability to literally bury a hundred million Kennedy half dollars without a trace one wonders just what kind of thinking went into the plan to issue 45 million new silver dollars. For it must be remembered that while the half was not worth face in bullion value, the dollar will be and will be hoarded for that reason alone if no other.

At any rate, if you intend to get any quantity of them you'd better be prepared to pay a minimum of $1.50 per coin and you will be lucky if you can get them for that.

"A brilliant application of micro-economic principles to the forecasting of future coin prices. This should finally put an end to the meaningless published projections of coin prices based primarily on past performance. PATHS TO WEALTH THROUGH COIN INVESTMENTS will become a classic in numismatic literature."

We have been most fortunate in acquiring a small supply of the very scarce ISRAELI COIN ISSUE PRESENTATION SHEET of 1948. This sheet is greatly sought after by both stamp and coin collectors and investors, but is rarely available in any quantity.

We had planned to offer the sheet over the national teletype exchanges for $10.00 each WHOLESALE, but have instead decided to make them a special gift to our prompt readers. We will send one sheet, as long as our limited supply lasts, to every investor ordering PATHS TO WEALTH THROUGH COIN INVESTMENTS from this advertisement. YES, A $10.00 GIFT FOR YOU IF YOU ORDER TODAY!
